“Use the best ingredients, and give people their money’s worth”
-Peter Spaans

Spaans' history in the bakery business dates to 1896 when our great-grandfather, Peter Spaans, became an apprentice baker in Holland. He came to America with his wife in 1912 and settled in Kansas. He tried wheat farming but soon returned to his trade as a baker after he learned American measurements and pastry preferences. He opened his first bakery in Muir, Michigan. By 1922 he was running a bakery route in the country, selling bread for seven cents a loaf. Three of his five children became bakers.

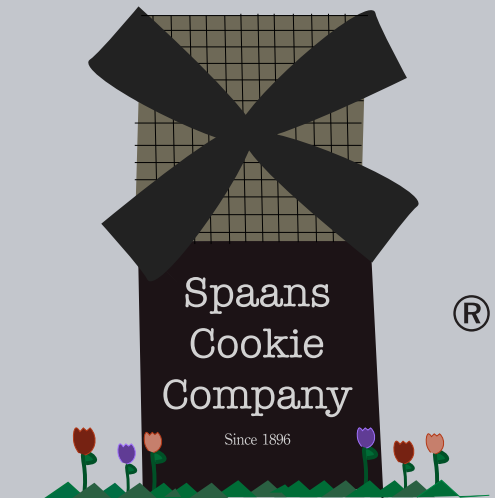

After learning the from his father, first born William, our grandfather, married Anna, our grandmother, and opened a bakery in 1935, the Spaans Dutch Bakery in Muskegon, Michigan. They featured donuts and pastries and even made potato chips for a time. They were a team, Bill baking goods and Anna waiting on customers at the counter.

Spaans is still thriving in it's fifth generation of employees, and keeping traditions strong.
